The team remains silent, but this time the calm is short-lived.1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an information processing device and a code generation method. 2. Description of the Related Art A code generation method has been already known, which generates a first code from information of a user input, stores the first code in a memory, and checks the first code stored in the memory to determine whether or not the user is inputting correct information. When the user inputs correct information, the code generation method calculates a second code (a second code that has been checked, a second code (check code) which is different from the first code, and a combining result of the first code and the second code), and stores the second code in the memory. In this manner, the code generation method checks, after the user input information to the information processing device, whether the user is inputting correct information. Accordingly, the code generation method is able to improve security. Further, when the user inputs information, the first code and the second code are stored. Therefore, it is necessary to make the first code that is stored in the memory consistent with the second code that is calculated by the code generation method. However, at the time of checking the first code stored in the memory, it is impossible to check, as the result of the first code, whether the first code in the memory is consistent with the second code that is calculated by the code generation method. Accordingly, at the time of checking the first code stored in the memory, it is also impossible to check, as the result of the first code, whether the first code stored in the memory is consistent with the result of combining the first code and the second code.Q: How to set a cookie as empty for a particular domain in Angular?
